BIOGRAPHY

Alternative pathways for junior doctors to specialize should not be limited to DM programs, where a monopoly exists and graduates find themselves working alongside those who trained them. Such a unilateral scenario presents a clear conflict of interest and should be discouraged. Diversifying pathways to include other means of specialization is essential to ensuring fairness and integrity in the specialization process.

In a rapidly evolving medical landscape, embracing diversity and innovation is paramount. As a staunch advocate for advancing medical education and professional growth, I believe in encouraging continued learning through elective Continuing Medical Education (CME) opportunities. However, I am equally committed to ensuring that such initiatives remain OPTIONAL and FREE and not monetized for personal enrichment. My goal is to foster a culture where CME is valued as a means of personal and professional enrichment, rather than a lifelong compulsory obligation exploited for personal gain.

One of the most counterproductive responses to change and diversity is clinging to the status quo, "We've always done it this way..." If we continue to do the same thing, we can only expect the same results. It's time to embrace change and diversity in anticipation of better outcomes.

I humbly request your support and trust in this endeavor. Together, we'll work towards brighter future for all. Thank you for your support and I look forward to serving if elected in this capacity.
